It has been a very mild winter thus far, but I am still looking forward to spring. It is the time of growth, rejuvenation and promise. Spring is the time of year when we all have a sense of renewal and looking forward.

To carry on this theme of revitalization, I am pleased to write that the construction is on schedule! This is truly a time of excitement and rebuilding in so many ways.

While we anticipate our new surroundings, have you visited us at the Library? To misappropriate a quote from Shakespeare’s A Midsummer Night Dream, “though she be but little, she is fierce.” Or, The Little Train That Could, “I knew I could, I knew I could.” Come in and experience an inviting, small community Library with a big desire to serve. If there is an item you cannot find on the shelf, let us know and we can get it here, and get it quickly.

If you cannot make it to the building, visit us virtually, online at www.eastmeadow.info. There you can peruse the online magazines, books, or reference titles. Or, maybe stream a film using Kanopy. Of course, you can do research using our electronic resources.

Thank you for finding our programs! The attendance at EMPL events in satellite venues has been steadily growing. Though using off-site locations might be challenging, it is also exciting. Holding programs at Samanea NY Marketplace, the Benevolent Hall or the East Meadow Jewish Center, provides us with a new way to experience each concert, book discussion, film, art show, etc. The nomadic life of our programs has developed new, stronger, and important relationships between community-based organizations, local businesses, and the public.

Now you can visit us in the Library, online, or at one of our off-site venues. This proves the East Meadow Public Library can go anywhere with the help of our patrons!

This companion tale to Moloka‘i tells the story of Ruth, the daughter that Rachel Kalama – quarantined for most of her life at the isolated leprosy settlement of Kalaupapa – was forced to give up at birth. The book follows young Ruth from her arrival at the Kapi‘olani Home for Girls in Honolulu, to her adoption by a Japanese couple, her marriage, and unjust internment at Manzanar Relocation Camp during World War II.

After the war, she receives a letter from a woman who says she is Ruth’s birth mother, Rachel. The novel expands upon Ruth and Rachel’s 22-year relationship, only hinted at in Moloka‘i. It’s a tale of two women – different in some ways, similar in others – who never expected to meet, much less come to love one another.

In 1492, the Jewish and Muslim populations of Spain were expelled, and Columbus set sail for America. Luis de Torres, a Spanish Jew, accompanied Columbus as his interpreter. Over the centuries, de Torres’ descendants traveled from Spain and Portugal to Mexico, finally settling in the hills of New Mexico. Five hundred years later, Miguel Torres resides there in Luna de Entrada. When Miguel sees a flyer for a babysitting job, he begins to work for a Jewish family. Miguel is surprised to find that many of the Rothstein family’s customs are similar to ones he’s grown up with, but never understood.

Interwoven throughout the present-day narrative are the powerful stories of the ancestors of Luna de Entrada’s residents, highlighting the torture, pursuit, and resistance of the Jewish people.

In painting this luminous portrait of a family’s becoming, Lombardo joins the ranks of writers such as Celeste Ng, Elizabeth Strout, and Jonathan Franzen as visionary chroniclers of our modern lives.
